

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A mobile phone device with video output function is provided. Digital images captured by a digital camera module within the mobile phone device or digital images stored within a memory card are converted to analogue video signals through a video 5 digital/analogue converter. The analogue video signals are subsequently transmitted to a screen projector or a television set for display.